The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all the stages and that is catarrh. Catarrh being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and enabling nature to do its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Catarrh Medicine that they offer One

WHO SUPPORT WILSON

—Wickersham, former Republican U.S. Attorney General

President Wilson's remark that "politics is adjourned" in his recent address to Congress on the revenue situation, did not find a response among Republican leaders, judging by the interview given the following day by Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania to the Philadelphia Public Ledger.In discussing a conference he and Chairman Hays of the Republican National Committee were to have with Pennsylvania Republican chieftains, the boss of the Keystone State said:"The judgment of Republican leaders generally is that the party should wage a vigorous campaign for the election of a majority of the House in the next Congress. It is felt that Congress should assume its full share of the responsibility in the direction of the work of the war. Of course, there will be no disposition to hamper or embarrass the President in any way, but with the Republicans in the majority of the House, a searching investigation of every bureau that needs investigation would be assured."Just what Senator Penrose means may be gathered by reading the following comment in the New York World on an editorial in the New York Tribune:

Plans Are Revealed

"We had never realized what the great advantages to the country would be in a Congress with 100 Republican majority as Senator Penrose desires, until the Tribune explained the great work that such a Congress could do:"Congress could, by a single vote, practically take from the President any power whatsoever as to the preparation and organization for the war. It could abolish Secretary Baker.
It could create a War Board, with practically absolute authority.""It could take the whole conduct of the war into its own hands.""Or delegate it to the Supreme Court or any other body it chose to designate or authorize.""Conceivably, some time Congress may be compelled to exercise the constitutional authority which it possesses. It cannot now.""For this a full two-thirds majority in both houses would be necessary in order to pass any such measure over the President's veto and if it were necessary, to impeach any judge or any other official who attempted to question this clear constitutional right.""Under present conditions this two-thirds majority is lacking, and so long as the Democratic party retains its present holdings in the two houses this situation will remain.""This Congress can not strip the President of all his war powers, abolish the Cabinet, impeach the Supreme Court for declaring such an act invalid or impeach the President for refusing to permit the destruction of the United States government, because the Democrats are in control. Under present conditions the necessary anti-Wilson majority is lacking, and so long as the Democratic party retains its present holdings in the two houses this situation will remain." But it may be different next year."Is the Tribune speaking for the leaders of the Republican party when it insists that the way to win the war is to wreck the Constitution and the Government of the United States?
Is this to be the Republican program in the campaign of 1918?"

Wickersham Is Frank

Further explanation of the purpose of Republican machine leaders in the event of the overthrow of the present control of Congress is found in the surprisingly frank speech of Geo.
W. Wickersham, former United States Attorney General, recently at a Republican banquet at Lancaster, Pa.Speaking to young Republicans of Pennsylvania, Mr. Wickersham, according to the Lancaster Intelligencer, threw aside restraint and launched into a bitter attack on the administration. He charged the President with building up a great political machine and with making the war "as far as possible a Democratic matter.""He urged the Republicans," said the Intelligencer, "to elect members of their party to Congress, but be sure to select the very best men, that those who so kindly acquiesced in everything proposed by the administration without proper criticism shouldbe retired. He claimed that any attempt to change our social customs because of the war would be unfortunate and that healthy public criticism and even relentless criticism was more necessary in time of war than in time of peace, and that "the Republican party will be false to her high mission if she fails to devote all of her energies to the preservation of our Constitutional liberties against supervision under the guise of war necessities."Commenting editorially on the Wickersham attack, the Lancaster Intelligencer said:"What does it mean? It means that the Republican national organization when it says that its candidates will stand by the President, if elected, is stooping to political trickery of the meanest sort. And such a leading spokesman as Mr. Wickersham does a great service in telling the truth and clarifying the issue so that the voters will know how to act at the next election. His speech will make the issue. There can be no divided responsibility now. The danger is too great. The Hun is at our door."

Wife Slayer's Plea

Cleveland, June 12.—It was a "bullet of mercy" that Henry La Frenier fired into his wife, Ethel, he testified in police court when he was brought from a hospital and arraigned on a charge of murder. "She shot and hit me in the wrist," La Frenier said.
"and then shot herself in the head. I thought it was an act of mercy to end her sufferings. So I shot her." Le Frenier was bound over.

Autos in Collision; Three Killed

St. Clairsville, O., June 10.—Mr. and Mrs. William Cellers of Belleaire and Lillian Paden, aged 1 year, of Martins Ferry, were killed in an automobile collision on the National road east of here, while six others were hurt. The cars crashed while one car was trying to pass another machine. Cellers was president of the Belleaire Brewing company.

Prisoners Jump Job

Zanesville, O., June 10.—Four Mansfield reformatory prisoners, at work in improving the old National road in Muskingum county, have escaped. They are: Arthur Brown, Lucas county; Clinton Swords, Scioto county; Tony Bereck and Matt Koc Cuyahoga county. None of the penitentiary prisoners in the same work have attempted escape.Over the TopBy an American Soldier Who Went ARTHUR GUY EMPEYWhen the Lusitania was sunk Arthur Guy Empey decided that he could not wait for his country to declare war—so he sailed without orders for England, and enlisted as a Canadian.He recounts this incident in "OVER THE TOP" in less than five hundred words. In a few thousand more words he completes his experiences in England —and after that he is in France—for the greater part of the eighteen months before he was invalided home, in the "Front Line Trenches.""OVER THE TOP" is the first story by one of the American soldiers who went to France, has been a real combatant and has seen long service in the trenches.Sergeant Empey tells what it actually means and feels like: to be wounded seven times; to live for a year and a half with mud and rats and shells; to be covered with "cooties" and never to get rid of them; to go "over the top" in a charge; to grasp for your gas helmet when a second's delay means death; to capture a Prussian;
to get tangled up in barbed wire with that machine gun working a few yards away; to lie for thirty-six hours wounded and unconscious in "No Man's Land."For a year and a half, until he fell wounded in "No Man's Land" this American soldier saw more actual fighting and real warfare than any war correspondent who has written about the war. His experiences are grim, but they are thrilling, and lightened by a touch of humor as original as the Soldiers Three. And they are True.We take pleasure in announcing that we have secured serial rights to this remarkable story and that it will appear in installments

The Wettest State in Line

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.] Pennsylvania has been called the wettest state in the Union. Yet if present indications are accepted, the next Pennsylvania Legislature will ratify the Prohibition amendment to the Federal constitution.
State primaries were held on Wednesday. The Penrose candidate for Governor swept the Republican primary; both Penrose, and he favor the ratification of the amendment. On the face of the returns it appears that a majority of the Republican candidates for both the Senate and the House will, if elected, vote for national Prohibition. And it will not be forgotten that in most sections of Pennsylvania and for most offices a Republican nomination is practically equivalent to election.
The setting of the stage for the ratification of the Federal amendment by the Union's wettest state indicates the trend of opinion throughout the country. From now on, it appears, it is to be a mere procession of dry Legislatures voting their approval of the Prohibition amendment.The Best Policy and Safest Guide of Conduct

BY JAMES W. FAULKNER.

"HE serves his party best who serves the country best," a maxim laid down by Rutherford B. Hayes, General, Governor of Ohio and President, should be kept before him by every member of a political organization in the United States. In those ten words are to be found the best policy, the purest patriotism and the safest guide of conduct that may be imagined. More could not be contained in a library of books on statecraft.Always the aim of the political party should be the service of the nation and that which serves most and best should rightfully have the preference. There is now a call to duty sounding to every committeeman in Ohio. It was uttered by the President of the United States, who has said that, pending the outcome of the mighty battle for the preservation of democratic government, politics is adjourned.
On behalf of the heavily taxed treasury he has asked that the people save their money and with it purchase War Savings Stamps.The leaders of the two dominant parties in Ohio have given their pledges that this call from the head of the government and commander of the military and naval forces of the nation will be heeded and they have summoned each of their followers to take the field as selling agents for these small divisions of loans. Already the competition is under way, each party endeavoring to vindicate its claim of being the most useful to the community as a whole. It now becomes the duty of every partisan to enlist with the organization of his political group and, by purchase and pledge, enable his associates to win the victory. Each party should rejoice that it is permitted as a body to engage in this high and necessary task. Occasion is given by it for each committeeman to justify his usefulness to the body politic, and thus reject and overturn the accusation that only sordid selfishness governs in party organizations.One of the greatest statesmen that the country has produced was Daniel Webster. In his wisdom, he said: "There has ever been and will always be two dominant parties in politics, and this is indirectly an advantage to the general interests of the country." Opportunity is now furnished the Democratic and Republican parties in Ohio to corroborate the Massachusetts sage and to go even farther and actually demonstrate a direct advantage to the general interests by helping to secure Ohio's War Savings Stamp quota of $106,000,000.The Greatest War
